

Thursday 16th June 2011

Poster Session

Agile Development Teams as an Instrument for Managing Change at Universitat Jaume I

Speaker: Ricardo Borillo, University of Jaume I De Catellón

Abstract:

One of the most important aspects in the organization is continuous improvement. In IT teams this means to achieve a higher level of satisfaction of our users (students, teachers and staff) and to reduce the time of software deployment.

In order to accomplish these objectives new mechanisms that allow development teams to generate solutions faster and better, with added value to the customer, are needed.

In this context of improvement, this article will describe how it is possible to implement agile methodologies in software development processes in the university, specifically at Universitat Jaume I de Castellón.